

Nanoose Bay artist Kelly Corbett presents her expression of majestic British Columbia. Holding diplomas in both Fine Art (UFV) and Photography Academy, Kelly combines academic training with her natural talent of painting with acrylics. Kelly's style invites you to take a step outside; a trip through the forest, or an outing by kayak to commune with the natural world.

As a realist painter my motivation is to share my visual experiences. To create paintings that speak both to me and to others about the beauty that exists in British Columbia. My style invites the viewer to recall their own past adventures and relive the sights and scents of BC's natural environment. Through my artwork I try to bring the outside in, to pay tribute to the natural world and remind us how rewarding it can be to take the time to reconnect with nature.

I've always dabbled in art. My mother enrolled me in private art lessons when I was eight years old. It wasn't until I got a part time job working in an art gallery that I realized I could make a real living as an artist. I have been doing art seriously for six years and I am in my fourth year of being a full-time artist. I love having a career as an artist. I have especially embraced the business/marketing side of art which I definitely believe helps with my success.

Follow me on Instagram @kelly_corbett_artist or Facebook @kellycorbettartist as I love to share business tips and helpful advice with other artists! You can also find my paintings in the Lloyd Gallery in Penticton, Woodlands Gallery in Manitoba, and Art Junction Gallery in Whistler. Plus I have two art residencies, one at The Old School House Art Centre in Qualicum Beach and one at the McMillan Art Centre in Parksville.
